All the present day Kimball families throughout America
the distinction of having one common ancestor, Richard, Ipswich, Mass. with wife Ursula and 6 children he embarked April 1634 from Ipswich England on the ship Elizabeth and arrived first at Weymouth, Mass., where he was freeman 1635 a proprietor 1636-7. He removed about 1637 to Ipswich where he died, aged 80, on June 24, 1675 after a residence of 41 years. He was a shipwright. Richard, Eng. appears to have been the ancestral home of the Kimballs or Kimbells but tradition ascribes settlement, County Suffolk, as the birthplace of Richard. He was married there about 1611 to Ursula Scott daughter of his eleven children. She died 21 Oct. 1661 and Richard died 24 Nov. 1675, widow of Henry Dow, who survived him one year.

Compliments of the Compiler.

All the present day Kimball families throughout America have the distinction of having one common ancestor, Richard, of Ipswich, Mass. With wife Ursula and 6 children he embarked April 1634 from Ipswich England on the ship Elizabeth and settled first at Watertown, Mass., where he was freeman 1635 and a proprietor 1636-7. He removed about 1637 to Ipswich where he died, aged 80, on June 22, 1675 after a residence of 38 years. He was a wheelwright. Hitcham, Eng. appears to have been the ancestral home of the Kymboulds or Kemballs but tradition ascribes Rattlesden, County Suffolk, as the birthplace of our Richard. He was married there about 1611 to Ursula Scott mother of his eleven children. She died 21 Oct. 1661 and Richard married Margaret, widow of Henry Dow, who survived him one year.

6 ASA⁶ KIMBALL (Asa⁵, Philemon⁴, Joseph³, John², Richard¹) of Gloucester R. I. Barton Vt. Burlington, Ohio, farmer, mill operator and builder, was born at Gloucester, R. I. 27 Mar. 1769; died at Burlington, Ohio 28 Feb. 1821. He m. (1) Naomi Owen, dau. of Daniel and Hannah Angell Owen, of Gloucester, who died at Barton Vt. 19 Dec. 1808; m. (2) 1809 Aurelia Burzey Hibbard b. Claremont N. H. 28 Nov, 1778; dau. of Rev. Augustine Hibbard (Jos. Robert) and Eunice Ashley Hibbard. Rev. Hibbard was a chaplain in Rev. Army and his wife was a daughter of Col. Samuel Ashley, of Revolutionary fame.

In 1794 in company with Col. Barton, who with Kimball's father, Maj. Asa and father-in-law Judge Owen, had received a large military grant of land in northern Vt., Asa Jr., planted the first crops at the site of what was a little later to be the town of Barton. The next year he brought his family from R. I. to Barton where he was leading citizen for over 20 years, serving as the town's first moderator, first mill owner, tavern keeper, surveyor and pound keeper. In 1815 he sold his Barton holdings and removed to Candor, N. Y. where he remained about a year when his restless pioneering spirit drove him further westward to southern Ohio. He settled on Leatherwood Creek in the new county of Lawrence. When Burlington, on the Ohio river, was established as the county seat in 1817 he was awarded the contract for building the first court house there. Although the court had only a $1500 appropriation and bidding was on a competitive basis, the plans submitted by Mr. Kimball were so favorably looked upon he was given the contract for $1936. The handsome cupolaed brick structure stood for over a hundred years long after the county seat had been moved to Ironton. Death at the age of 52 closed the career of one whom contemporary accounts refer to as "industrious, resourceful and ambitious".
